

REEL PLAYBOOK

The idea in one line: every reel names ONE problem a driver is having right now, shows you fixing it, and sends them to the link in bio — where the website turns them into a WhatsApp booking with their car's details already filled in. How to film it, script by script.

THE FORMULA

ANATOMY OF A 30-SECOND REEL

0–2 s

Hook — say the symptom to camera. First words name the problem the viewer has: “ABS light flashing while you drive?” Nothing else opens the video.

3–10 s

What it means. One or two sentences — what's probably wrong and why leaving it costs more later. Plain words, no jargon.

10–25 s

Show the fix. Real footage: the car on the hoist, the worn part next to the new one, the scanner reading. Your workshop is the proof.

25–30 s

The same CTA, every time. Word for word — it's the last beat of every script card below.

One video = ONE symptom. Never list five problems in one reel — the person with the ABS light needs to feel like this video was made for them.

FIVE SCRIPTS — FILM STRAIGHT OFF THIS LIST

“ABS LIGHT FLASHING WHILE YOU DRIVE?”

01

0–2 s · Hook

Open tight on the flashing ABS light. Say the hook to camera — and put it on screen as text. Nothing else opens the video.

3–10 s · What it means

“That light means the system that stops you skidding is off duty. Usually a sensor — cheap to check, dangerous to ignore in the wet.”

10–25 s · Show the fix

The scanner pulling the fault code; the wheel sensor coming off the hub; the light gone on the road test.

25–30 s · CTA

“If that's your car — link in bio, tap ‘Issues with my car’, tell us what's wrong, and we'll sort it.”

Sells: diagnostics — a real customer already booked from this exact problem

“BRAKES SQUEALING WHEN YOU SLOW DOWN?”

02

0–2 s · Hook

Film the wheel while the squeal happens — let them HEAR it. Hook spoken and on screen as text.

3–10 s · What it means

“That squeal is the wear indicator — the pad telling you it's nearly gone. Catch it now and it's pads; leave it and it's discs too.”

10–25 s · Show the fix

Worn pad held next to a new one — the visual sells itself. Then the new pads going in.

25–30 s · CTA

“If that's your car — link in bio, tap ‘Issues with my car’, tell us what's wrong, and we'll sort it.”

Sells: brake inspection / Standard Service

“AIRCON BLOWING WARM THIS SUMMER?”

03

0-2 s · Hook

Hand at the vent, face says it all. Hook spoken and on screen as text.

3-10 s · What it means

“Nine times out of ten it's low gas from a slow leak. A regas with a dye test finds the leak instead of masking it.”

10-25 s · Show the fix

The gauges hooked up; the vent thermometer before and after — that falling number is the money shot.

25-30 s · CTA

“If that's your car — link in bio, tap ‘Issues with my car’, tell us what's wrong, and we'll sort it.”

Sells: air conditioning — post in spring, pin all summer

“CAR SLOW TO CRANK IN THE MORNING?”

04

0-2 s · Hook

The laboured, slow crank — audio first, dashboard in frame. Hook spoken and on screen as text.

3-10 s · What it means

“Batteries don't die suddenly — they warn you for weeks. A two-minute test tells you if it's the battery, the alternator, or a drain.”

10-25 s · Show the fix

The battery tester clipped on; the verdict printing out; a crisp instant start after.

25-30 s · CTA

“If that's your car — link in bio, tap ‘Issues with my car’, tell us what's wrong, and we'll sort it.”

Sells: battery test / Standard Service

“DIESEL BLOWING BLACK SMOKE — OR THE DPF LIGHT'S ON?”

05

0–2 s · Hook

The sooty tailpipe or the puff of black smoke. Hook spoken and on screen as text.

3–10 s · What it means

“Short trips clog diesels. A forced regen or a clean now beats a $4,000 filter later.”

10–25 s · Show the fix

The regen running on the scanner; temperatures climbing; the exhaust running clean after.

25–30 s · CTA

“If that's your car — link in bio, tap ‘Issues with my car’, tell us what's wrong, and we'll sort it.”

Sells: diesel & DPF

THE COMPARISON REEL

The five scripts above sell repairs. This one sells services — and it works differently. Instead of naming a problem, it answers the question every customer is quietly asking: “am I being upsold?”

Answer it honestly, including when the cheap option is the right one. A comparison reel that always lands on “buy the expensive one” reads as a sales pitch and kills trust. One that says “most cars don't need this” is the reason people book with you instead of the shop down the road.

Two versions — film them as separate reels, one idea per video, same as every other script.

VERSION A — “IS EXPENSIVE ENGINE OIL ACTUALLY WORTH IT?”

01

0–2 s · Hook

Two oil bottles held up side by side, one in each hand. Hook spoken and on screen as text.

3–10 s · The difference

“Both protect your engine. The better one stays thinner when it's cold and doesn't break down as fast when it's hot — and most engine wear happens in the first ten seconds after a cold start.”

10–25 s · Show it

The proof shot: drained oil from a car run on cheap oil next to oil drained at the same kilometres on full synthetic — black sludge vs still-amber. Two jars on the bench, labelled. If you don't have that pair yet, start saving drain samples now — this is the whole video.

25–30 s · Verdict + CTA

“Short trips around Adelaide in a normal car? The standard oil is fine — don't let anyone tell you otherwise. Turbo, diesel, towing, or a car you want to keep ten years? Pay the extra. Not sure which is yours — link in bio, tell us your car, we'll tell you straight.”

Sells: trust first, servicing second — the honesty IS the pitch

VERSION B — “$149 OR $329 SERVICE? HERE'S THE ACTUAL DIFFERENCE.”

0–2 s · Hook

Wide shot of the bench with the parts already laid out in three groups. Hook spoken and on screen as text.

3–10 s · Lay it out

Walk the bench and name each group as you point: “Basic — oil, filter, safety check. Standard — all that plus air filter, battery test, brakes, fault scan, road test. Premium — plus cabin filter, fuel system treatment and a written report.”

10–25 s · Show it

Close on the physical parts — this is why the format works: the customer SEES what their money buys instead of reading a list. Hold up the dirty cabin filter that came out of a real car; that one shot sells Premium on its own.

25–30 s · Verdict + CTA

“Most cars doing normal Adelaide kilometres want the Standard. Go Premium if it's high-k, tows, or you're about to road-trip it. Prices and booking in bio.”

Sells: the $229 Standard tier — named as the default choice, which is where most bookings should land

Caption tweak for these two: the first line is still a question the customer is asking — “Is expensive oil worth it?” or “$149 or $329 service?” — not a list of what you offer. Everything else in the caption rules below stays the same.

THE CAPTION

EXAMPLE OF A FINISHED CAPTION

This exact caption is on the pinned reel on Instagram — open it and copy the shape every time:

Engine light on? Everyone fears the worst. This Nissan needed one small part instead of four. We test first, so you only pay for what is actually broken.

Adelaide mechanic in Salisbury Plain.

Prices and booking in bio 🙌

- Under 30 words before the hashtags. Short captions perform better. If it feels too short, it is right.
- The first line is the customer's problem, not our slogan. “Engine light on?” works. “Best service in town!” does not.
- Write “Adelaide” somewhere in the text every time — not just in the hashtags. This is how local people find us.
- Normal letters only. No “fancy bold” Instagram fonts — Instagram search cannot read them.
- Maximum 5 hashtags, each with the # symbol. At least two local ones:
#adelaidemechanic #salisburyplain.

When sharing the same reel to the Facebook community groups, swap “bio” for the special group link Stalin gave you — it lets us see exactly which group sends customers.
